Why (un)Occupy?

We changed our name out of respect for the region's indigenous communities, which have been forcibly occupied by the United States for centuries, and in solidarity with occupied peoples around the world.

Colonization and racism are at the core of the economic inequality we see today. We believe that by ignoring the power dynamics of privilege and discrimination, this monumental social movement will recreate the very structures of injustice it seeks to eliminate. It is our strong conviction that a movement to end economic injustice must have at its core an honest struggle to end racism, colonization, and all forms of oppression.

Movement Agreements

- We are non-violent.
- We respect the land and each other.
- We are proactive and mindful of our public presence.
- We use 100% consensus decision-making process.
- We have no spokesperson or leader.
- We are non-hierarchical.
- We practice anti-oppression politics.
- We do not use illegal drugs, drink alcohol, or smoke cigarettes on site.
