Learn how you can help free Leonard Peltier!

The shocking, true story of Leonard Peltier, the American Indian Movement leader locked away for life in Leavenworth Penitentiary, convicted of the alleged murder of two FBI agents during a bloody shootout on the Pine Ridge Reservation in 1975. Around the world his trial has been denounced as a sham. Amnesty International, Archbishop of Canterbury, Desmond Tutu, and more than fifty members of the new U.S. Congress have appealed for a new trial for the man who has come to symbolize the continued oppression of indigenous peoples in the US. Warrior takes us back to the violent confrontations at Pine Ridge and Wounded Knee in the Seventies, and to today's reservations where the government's plans for uranium mining and waste dumping are still fiercely resisted by Native activists. The heart of the film, though, is a detailed and painstaking account of Peltier's harrowing odyssey through the US justice system.

Organized by the International Leonard Peltier Defense Committee, (un)Occupy Albuquerque, and the Indigenous Rights Center. More info at: whoisleonardpeltier.info?p=8152
